

Joseph G. Jordan was confirmed as the Administrator for Federal Procurement Policy on May 24, 2012. As the Administrator, Mr. Jordan is responsible for developing and implementing acquisition policies supporting over $500 billion in spending by the United States government each year. Prior to his appointment as Administrator, he served as Senior Advisor to Office of Management and Budget Acting Director Jeffrey Zients, a position he held since December 2011.

Between 2009 and 2011, Mr. Jordan served as Associate Administrator of Government Contracting and Business Development at the U.S. Small Business Administration in March of 2009. His team supported thousands of small businesses every year as they compete for over $500 billion in federal prime contracts and billions more in subcontracts.

Prior to joining SBA, Mr. Jordan was an Engagement Manager with McKinsey & Company, a global management consulting firm. At McKinsey, he specialized in developing purchasing and supply management strategies for clients across several industries. He also worked with the firm's public sector practice, advising state governments on how to cut costs and capture efficiencies.

In 2000, Mr. Jordan built and managed operations of Backwire, a web-based publisher-marketer which quickly grew to 3 million subscribers. When the company was purchased by Leap Wireless, he transitioned to become Leap's project manager for strategic planning and product development.

From 1998 to 2000, Mr. Jordan worked on MSNBC's "Hardball with Chris Matthews."

Mr Jordan received his B.A. from the College of the Holy Cross and an M.B.A. from the University of Virginia's Darden School of Business Administration.
